THE POWER OF Plant Peptides

The plant-based peptides in the Marine Flower Peptide Collection are naturally derived from sacha inchi and rice protein. These powerful proteins are used to enhance skin's elasticity. By including peptides in your ritual, you can dramatically improve the overall tone and texture of your skin.

Plant Peptides from Sacha Inchi

This plant peptide is derived from the superfood seed of the sacha inchi plant, native to the Amazon rainforests and tropical regions of South America. This peptide helps to reduce the appearance of wrinkles by improving skin texture and elasticity to reveal firmer looking skin.

Plant Peptides from Rice Protein

These tiny peptides derived from rice protein are easily absorbed deep into the skin thanks to their small molecular structure. They stimulate the production of important structural proteins, like collagen, for smoother looking skin.
